Continuing Education at St. Andrew's College

Who are Continuing Education Students?

Individuals or groups seeking courses, events, book studies, or a facilitated conversation related to justice-seeking themes in theological studies, ministry, and community life. For example:

- Church congregations or members of congregations;
- Alumni of St. Andrew's who want to keep on studying;
- Leaders of faith communities looking for learning opportunities;
- Anyone curious and looking for resources and conversations on subjects or issues taught and researched at St. Andrew's, and/or found in Saskatoon Theological Union Library books.

Becoming a Continuing Education Student

Participants in Continuing Education programming at St. Andrew's College have the option to sign up as Continuing Education Students and acquire Continuing Education Units (CEU) for their completion of designated program offerings. A small fee is assessed, and students are assigned a student number to be used for tracking their CEUs.

Learning Reflections

Program offerings may include options to submit written or other forms of learning reflections to a professor for feedback; the completion of these will normally result in an additional 0.5 CEU. Students must complete at least 1.5 CEU of program activity to submit a reflection for CEU credit.

Certificates

Upon completion of at least 12 CEUs, including the submission of at least one Learning Reflection, students may request a Certificate in Continuing Theological Studies in recognition of their participation.

Capstones

These will be celebrations of learning. Upon completion of at least 12 CEUs, Continuing Education students will have an opportunity to gather and share their experiences and learning.

Core Program Offerings

In the Community

Conversations in Community are designed for congregations or other groups with St. Andrew's professors. These can be organized over one or two days, or as a series of weekends. CEUs depend on the length of workshops and series. Courses in the Community are six-to-eight week online/in-person courses specifically designed for continuing education. Students receive 2-3 CEUs.

Directed Studies

Continuing Education students arrange to meet with one professor to select and discuss one to two books. This would normally involve three to five hours/day of reading for five days and one or more reading discussions with the professor. Students receive 1.5 CEUs.

Course Audits

Students receive CEUs for auditing regularly delivered on-campus or online course offerings. Course audits normally require 36-39 hours of class time over 12-13 weeks or as part of a one-week intensive course. Students receive 6 CEUs.

Book Study Groups

Four-week book study groups led by a St. Andrew's College professor for 1.5 hours per week. Students receive 1 CEU.

ReJUNEvation

St. Andrew's annual continuing education event typically involves a guest speaker, discussions, workshops, worship, and other activities related to the speaker's theme. Students receive 2 CEUs.
